

Gingerbread House Workshop

Design a magnificent looking (and tasting!) gingerbread house

Originating from Germany in the 16th century, this Christmas tradition is one your guests will love the chance to experience. Usually displayed at the Christmas markets or in festive food halls, they truly do taste as good as they look and now you and your guests have the chance to learn how it's done.

Delivered either virtually, as a hybrid event, or socially distanced, your guests can get in the festive spirit wherever they are. We'll make sure they have everything they need to take part and on the day, our event host will be there to lead an interactive step-by-step session.

As is the case with all of our Ready Made Events, they're highly customisable to suit any number of guests and there's also the option to personalise the experience with MemMail too.

We love this event for those who want to involve their families or for a team who loves getting creative and trying something new together.
